

Ilias Kalfas, email: ikalfa@afs.edu.gr

Dr. Ilias Kalfas is a Plant Production agronomist with specialization in Plant Protection, Department of Agriculture of AUTH. He holds a PhD from the University of London, a Diploma of Imperial College and an MSc in Production Organization and Quality Management in the food industry.

He worked at the National Agricultural Research Foundation, ELGA, in Certification Organizations assuming positions of responsibility, in the Region of Central Macedonia, in National and European research and application programs and in the American Agricultural School. He is a member of the ENV Panel (Research Executive Agency) of the European Commission and an evaluator in scientific journals.

He is the Plant Production Project Leader of the Innovation & Impact Hub office of the American Farm School in Thessaloniki. He participates in many research projects while his research interests include the application of high technology in Greek agriculture, the circular economy, the sustainability of the Greek farmer and the environmental effects of agricultural activity.